The Delusion of Knowledge Transfer The Impact of Foreign Aid Experts on Policy-making in South Africa and Tanzania African Books Collective With the rise of the knowledge for development paradigm, expert advice has become a prime instrument of foreign aid. At the same time, it has been object of repeated criticism: the chronic failure of technical assistance a notion under which advice is commonly subsumed has been documented in a host of studies. Nonetheless, international organisations continue to send advisors, promising to increase the effectiveness of expert support if their technocratic recommendations are taken up. This book reveals fundamental problems of expert advice in the context of aid that concern issues of power and legitimacy rather than merely flaws of implementation. Based on empirical evidence from South Africa and Tanzania, the authors show that aid-related advisory processes are inevitably obstructed by colliding interests, political pressures and hierarchical relations that impede knowledge transfer and mutual learning. As a result, recipient governments find themselves caught in a perpetual cycle of dependency, continuously advised by experts who convey the shifting paradigms and agendas of their respective donor governments. For young democracies, the persistent presence of external actors is hazardous: ultimately, it poses a threat to the legitimacy of their governments if their policy-making becomes more responsive to foreign demands than to the preferences and needs of their citizens. This assumption induce us focus on the contrast between the "visible" side of the act that involves all its conceptual and practical manifestations, and a hidden or "dark" side that deals with politics and power play, but that however has an major influence in the process and its hierarchical dynamics. This implies an order on the surface seems to be naturally stirred by the so-called "perceptions" that reflect the preferences of overall public opinions: however, looking deeper, all the production acts involves a carefully controlled disequilibrium influenced by social, ecological, economical and political interests. The power flow in the act of "design" takes into consideration the paradoxical contradiction between its potentiality and its preservation of power.
