PUBLIC PAPERS OF THE PRESIDENTS OF THE UNITED STATES

THE FEDERALIST PAPERS

Read Books Ltd Classic Books Library presents this brand new edition of "The Federalist Papers", a collection of separate essays and articles compiled in 1788 by Alexander Hamilton. Following the United States Declaration of Independence in 1776, the governing doctrines and policies of the States lacked cohesion. "The Federalist", as it was previously known, was constructed by American statesman Alexander Hamilton, and was intended to catalyse the ratification of the United States Constitution. Hamilton recruited fellow statesmen James Madison Jr., and John Jay to write papers for the compendium, and the three are known as some of the Founding Fathers of the United States. Alexander Hamilton (c. 1755-1804) was an American lawyer, journalist and highly influential government official. He also served as a Senior Officer in the Army between 1799-1800 and founded the Federalist Party, the system that governed the nation's finances. His contributions to the Constitution and leadership made a significant and lasting impact on the early development of the nation of the United States.

Another related measure, as furnishing an increased ocean traffic for our ships, and of great and permanent benefit to the farmers and manufacturers as well, is the reciprocity policy declared by section 3 of the tariff act of 1890, and now in practical operation with five of the nations of Central and South America, San Domingo, the Spanish and British West India Islands, and with Germany and Austria, under special trade arrangements with each. The removal of the duty upon sugar and the continuance of coffee and tea upon the free list, while giving great relief to our people by cheapening articles used increasingly in every household, was also of such enormous advantage to the countries exporting these articles as to suggest that in consideration thereof reciprocal favors should be shown in their tariffs to articles exported by us to their markets. Great credit is due to Mr. Blaine for the vigor with which he pressed this view upon the country. We have only begun to realize the benefit of these trade arrangements. The work of creating new agencies and of adapting our goods to new markets has necessarily taken time, but the results already attained are such, I am sure, as to establish in popular favor the policy of reciprocal trade, based upon the free importation of such articles as do not injuriously compete with the products of our own farms, mines, or factories, in' exchange for the free or favored introduction of our products into other countries. Excerpt from book: HI PART 1 MESSAGES TO THE LEGISLATURE Regular Session ? January 3 to May 10 ANNUAL MESSAGE State Of New York ? Executive Chamber, January 3, 1917 To the Legislature: I desire to lay before you in this Message, among other matters, recommendations for the furtherance of the reforms in State finance begun by the adoption of the itemized form of appropriation act last year; a report of an investigation relative to food supplies and the high cost of living; a summary of a thorough investigation of the State charitable institutions, together with a statement and recommendations prepared by the State Board of Charities and filed with me on December 26th; certain matters of policy with regard to the competitive Civil Service of the State; recommendations for the advancement of the activities of the National Guard and the physical and military training in our schools; an analysis of the so-called Federal Aid to State highways together with a suggestion for the development of resources now in the possession of the State available for the production of road-making and building material; a report upon the progressive plans of the State for prison reform and construction; and the suggestion that the State should demonstrate that it is a model employer by insuring all its employees for compensation in case of injury or death resulting from service for the State. Investigations have been conducted during the last weeks and months relative to food supplies and the high cost of living. The Legislative Committee, of which Senator Wicks is Chairman, has been almost constantly at work since the adjournment of the Legislature of 1915 and has obtained much valuable information. The Mayor of New York some time ago appointed a Citizens' Committee to consider the subject...
